

BIO

Allegra Esclapon de Villeneuve (b. 1996, Vienna) is a multidisciplinary artist specializing in ceramics and sculpture.

Raised in Florence, Italy, surrounded by the world of ceramics and craftsmanship, she developed a deep connection to art from an early age, exploring traditional techniques such as engraving, sculpture, and oil painting.

She later pursued a degree in Costume Design for Theatre and Film at Wimbledon College of Arts (UAL) in London, followed by a Master's in Art and Cultural Management in Barcelona. Initially working in ceramic production in Florence, she transitioned to a more experimental and performative approach, integrating live sculpting and textile into her work.

Through projects like REVERSO, she abstracts the human form, capturing spontaneous movement tied to personal narratives. She has exhibited in Barcelona and Madrid and contributed to multidisciplinary performances exploring the dialogue between body and emotion.

Her artistic practice continues to explore the relationship between material, movement, and space, where every gesture becomes a trace of human experience.
